10 indicted in crack raids; 2 jailed

By TED OSHOOD
Call and Post City Editor

Columbus police narcotics bureau has not laid to rest the business of cracking down on crack houses, dealers and sellers of crack, according to Capt. Frank Phillips.

Phillips said between Jan. 1 and

Oct. 7 of this year, the SWAT team in cooperation with narcotics detectives have seized 30,207 grams of crack in different raids. The total street value is $374,624, he said.

So far, Phillips said, a total of 109 weapons and $146,102 in cash have been confiscated from the raids at different locations.

He said 10 persons who had pleaded guilty before trial, have been indicted by a federal grand jury.

The raids on suspected crack houses began in the latter part of 1986, according to Capt. Phillips. "At that time the proliferation of crack houses in central Ohio was not much," he recalled.

So far, Phillips said, there are 257 suspects awaiting possible federal indictments for trafficking, selling and distributing crack cocaine.

"Remember, sometimes there may be 8 to 10 people in a crack house who might either be suppliers or sellers—those are the ones we are interested in. But we have to prove that they are actually selling or supplying drugs before we can do anything with them," Phillips explained.

On Oct. 4, Columbus police raided three crack houses in less than four hours, seizing cocaine, weapons and drug-sale records, according to Sgt. Michael Manley of the narcotics bureau.

Police confiscated two automatic handguns, an intercom system and records of drug sales about 4:10 p.m. at 962 Cherry St.

'Key to improvement is support of Black business,' Hooks says

By WALI BELL
Call and Post Staff Writer

Benjamin Hooks, executive director of the NAACP, said the seven-year-old Operation Fair Share program must be expanded to help Blacks and other minorities, during a recent luncheon at the Hyatt Regency on Capital Square.

Hooks, addressing business owners, media and public officials, said the idea of Operation Fair Share, which was first developed during a conversation with takeover artist Reginald Lewis, is desperately needed.

"We were talking about ways in dealing with the working problem especially with the high rate of Black unemployment, especially with Black youth," Hooks said.

Hooks said Lewis indicated Blacks are not where the jobs are and have no way to get to them as a reason why the unemployment rate was so high.

Hooks said the only hope to improve the situation of Blacks is to improve Black business.

"If a white man wanted to start a business, chances are they can get help-at home, in their neighborhood, church, golf club, saloons, or whatever they belong to," Hooks explained.

Hooks said Blacks must start businesses with the same idea in mind to improve the number of Blacks employed.

"We have developed a Black underclass. Barely educated, estranged, doped up, prostituted ... with the capability to destroy. Because we as Blacks have failed to provide jobs," Hooks said.

Explaining that Black businesses have the capability to create, Hooks said Blacks must include themselves in the Operating Fair Share program.

Hooks said the program was designed to increase job opportunities in the private sector by committing corporations to the minority community.

The key element of the NAACP's Operation Fair Share program are:

• Increasing the number of Blacks in senior management positions.

• Having companies adopt an affirmative action program to hire and promote more minorities.

• To have corporations to include Blacks on their board of trustees.

• To have corporations adopt a minority procurement program so that minority companies can be involved in more business.

Fred Rasheed, director of the NAACP Economic Development Program, said Blacks must support the institutions that brought them where they are.

"It is my sincere belief that if we are to move into the mainstream of society, we must move forward as a people economically," Rasheed said.

Upscale housing planned

An exclusive housing development targeted to middle-income Black families is being introduced by SRP Properties. The development is called McCutcheon Meadows.

This 17-acre new development is located in the city's northeast quadrant adjacent to McCutcheon Rd.

"This is Columbus' hottest remaining undeveloped area and has recently been suggested by the city for development," said Paul R. Taylor Jr., a partner in SRP Properties.

The development will encompass 47 homes. McCutcheon Meadows will be an upscale subdivision available to minorities in Columbus, Taylor said. The homes will range in price from $125,000 to $150,000. Lots in the exclusive, single-entry neighborhood are in high demand. Of the 47 lots offered, five are sold and there are an additional 15 lots which have been committed for financing.

SRP Properties has targeted 14 months for completion of the development. Through the assistance of New Salem Baptist Church, all meetings, as well as the initial application process, will be conducted at their Cleveland Avenue Church. This will allow applications to be processed after work hours and during weekends.

Lynn Carter in 'good' condition

LYNN CARTER
...car accident

Carter was also treated for cuts and pain in her legs. It took rescue workers nearly a half hour to get Carter out of her car, which was tilted on its side. Carter, who is responsible for contracts review and real estate appropriation, was expected to be released Wednesday.

A 29-year-old Columbus woman was listed in good condition Tuesday evening at Mt. Carmel Hospital West, where she was taken Sunday, Oct. 9 about 11 a.m. after the car she was driving was struck broadside at Broad and Fourth St.

Lynn Carter, an assistant city attorney, was traveling west on Broad St., when her car was struck by a car being driven by Daniel Morrow, a 49-year-old Johnstown resident. Morrow, who was cited by Columbus police, was taken to Grant Hospital, Sunday after the accident. He was treated for cuts and released Tuesday.

Blacks hooked on import products? Refusal to target $$$ hampers Japanese boycott

By CHESTER A. HIGGINS, SR.
Call and Post contributing writer

WASHINGTON, D.C.—After more than 400 years in America, Blacks in the past twenty years have made significant advances but a "vast economic chasm" still remains between them and white Americans. Twenty years ago, Blacks earned 57 percent of every dollar whites earned. Today, Blacks earn 56 percent of the white dollar, which is indicative of a broadening gap between the races. That's one economics view.

There is another. Former Federal Reserve Board Governor Andrew Brimmer of Brimmer & Co., a Washington, D.C. economics and financial consulting firm, told NNPA that Bureau of Census income figures for Black Americans in 1987 was a whopping $220 billion. Brimmer company's projected 1988 figures for Black income as of Sept. 19, 1988, had escalated to $250 billion!

Brimmer, who was the Fed's first Black member, says that Blacks, through increased wages and salaries will close the gap quickly between themselves and the white population, despite present appearances. Brimmer agrees there is a yawning gap between Black and white income. He merely predicts a rapid closing of that gap through rising Black income.

Although the Brimmer figures which truly place Black America's GNP (Gross National Product—the sum total of its goods and services) among the top ten (it is number nine) in the world, they don't begin tell the whole story. The Bureau of Census figures, impressive as they appear, are only 7.4 per cent of total U.S. money income. The 1988 Brimmer projections increase that per percentage only slightly, to 7.54 per cent.

Although Black business sales in 1987, according to the Bureau of Census, was $18.2 billion, this was only a puny .334 per percent of total U.S. business sales. Brimmer Co. projects a healthier 1988 $20.1 sales in Black business. This is still a frail .340 percent of total U.S. business sales. Brimmer Co. projects slower Black business growth ahead. This is largely due to the fact that Blacks do not concentrate on buying among Black businesses, but spend across the spectrum.

Much of this poses a dilemma for Blacks in America who are angry at Japanese racist attacks and want to hit where it will hurt the Japanese most—in the pocket-book. Black annual dollar income is robust enough and it is presently purchasing 10 per cent of total Japanese annual imports. This would certainly hurt that country drastically if withdrawn. But

Black buying habits, that is, our refusal to make our dollar count even if it means sacrificing for short terms to win long term goals, make it difficult to mount concerted economic retaliation against the Japanese.

A "buy America" campaign has been launched by the Black Business Council, in retaliation. The Council Against Japanese Racism planned a demonstration before the Japanese Embassy in Washington, D.C. during which protesters would smash cameras, VCRs and other Japanese-made goods.

The National Newspaper Publishers Association is waging an education/sensitivity campaign weekly through member news-

NAACP REPORT

'We are shapers of our democratic government'

By CORNELL McCLEARY
First Vice President, NAACP

Former President Jimmy Carter, in his address to the nation on July 17, 1979, noted that despite this nation's wealth and power, opinion polls showed that Americans are losing their belief in progress and betterment.

Carter said, "More than that, our people are losing that faith, not only in government, but also in their abilities as citizens to serve as the ultimate rulers and shapers of our democracy."

Sometime in 1987, I visited my hometown in Philadelphia, Pa.

As I drove through the streets I frequented as a kid, tears welled in my eyes as I observed the poverty and degradation my people were being subjected to. Then, I asked myself: Was there a period where that massive human suffering could have been averted?

Another image also raced through my mind—one of a chance encounter with a young Black female child about 6 years old. I remember vividly that as a soldier on active duty stationed at Ft. Benning, Ga., I was walking through a low-income project in my uniform.

As I walked past the child, who was sitting on door steps with her face buried in her hands, she suddenly blurted: "I want to die." And in a jiffy, I stopped and asked the little girl to repeat what she said. I held her in my arms, and talked to her until she smiled. I also noticed a ray of gleaming hope in her eyes thinking of great things to come.

I left Philadelphia with a renewed determination to do all that I could to ensure that Blacks living in Columbus, Ohio who don't suffer the fate and living conditions as the thousands of Blacks living in my hometown.

CORNELL McCLEARY

I am a firm believer in the proverb that "Where there is no vision, the people perish."

In a few short weeks, we will be going to the polls to cast our votes for those things and persons that we believe are best for our future.

Since some of us have a crystal ball that can allow us to act with certainty, we must look back over the past few years at what has transpired to guide us in what we should do.

The two most critical decisions facing this community in general, and Blacks in particular, and the selection of the next President of the United States and the several Bond Issues that are being placed on the ballot.

On all issues relating to persons, the community must vote individually, not party, to give us a real chance for a future with some semblance of leadership. After all is said and done, there is no real difference between the parties.

In matters relating to the Bond Issues, people should be reminded that Bonds are secure by our tax dollars and any other revenue available to our City Government.

These Bonds are purchased by private persons and entities that historically have little interest in the social wishes of the people. These persons and interest cannot be approached or pressured to accommodate the legitimate needs and desires of the masses. Yet, these invisible bodies can muster tremendous pressure of our elected officials to accommodate their wishes. We must examine the soundness of placing such substantial mortgages on or city governments when there are so many clear indications that this economy is going to take an abrupt change for the worse.

We must also examine the fact that our elected officials have sidestepped almost all major social issues. The two actions combined spells catastrophe. Remember cities like New York and Philadelphia?

President Carter's notation of the people's insecurity was accurate. We the people, in Columbus, Ohio have an opportunity to forge the type of future we want. We must in the upcoming election send a signal to those persons that we will be electing or have already elected that We, the people, are the shapers of our democratic government in Columbus.

Southside group outraged by fired attorney's story

The Southside Community Action Association, Inc., says all the information released by Attorney H. Lee Thompson to the Call and Post for processing of a news story in the Sept. 22 edition, was wrong.

The association consists of many victims in the May 7, 1984 chemical explosion from the premises of Georgia-Pacific. The group later filed a $160 million lawsuit against company.

Roberta Booth, chairperson for the association, said: "H. Lee Thompson does not represent our organization. He was dismissed several months ago. Nothing in the article was correct."

Thompson had told the Call and Post that he will not give up on the case because of the way

H. LEE THOMPSON
...fired by southside action group
Georgia-Pacific has handled the settlement demand.

He said "after four years of legal battle in the suit, the company is offering $500 each to more than $10,000 victims of the blast."

Thompson also said, "Georgia-Pacific waited until the last minute to respond to a settlement demand. It is our position that if the company does not increase its offer we are going to push for a trial on the property damage."

Contacted at his office about his firing, Thompson said, "I am still the attorney in court at this time. I still represent more than 20 individuals, and until Southside Community Action Association hires another attorney to represent 'them', 'they' cannot affect my individual clients. Also, such an attorney has to enter an appearance."

Statewide conference on volunteer program is set

Columbus, Ohio will be the setting for a statewide conference on volunteer recruitment October 17 and 18. The conference theme is "Minorities Addressing the Need for Volunteers." Franklin County Children Services will host the event.

Franklin County Children Services has a successful volunteer program called "Simba" which stands for "young lions" in Swahili. The program is targeted toward Black males and has tripled the number of volunteers since its inception in May of this year.

The Governor's Council on Juvenile Justice and the Governor's Office of Criminal Justice provided a grant for this conference, directed toward agencies involved in utilizing volunteers in service delivery to clients. A key objective of the conference is to stress the use of volunteers in providing positive role models for youth and adolescents who might otherwise be involved in criminal behavior.

The conference will cover targeted recruitment techniques, marketing, media, motivating and retaining volunteers. Many of the techniques introduced can be used by agencies working with volunteers.

Father George Clements of Chicago, Illinois, known nationally for adopting a child and for his efforts in the recruitment of homes for Black children through the creation of the "One Church, One Child" program, is a scheduled speaker for the event to be held at the Parke Hotel, 900 Morse Rd.

For more information, contact Karen Boyd, Franklin County Children Services, (614) 275-2541.

Chamber Advisory

CARL L. BROWN SR.

LES WRIGHT

REV. JEROME H. ROSS

WHY WE JOINED THE COLUMBUS AREA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE?

Carl L. Brown Sr. gave up on the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce many years ago. This year, he decided to come back.

Brown, founder and owner of Carl L. Brown's IGA Foodliner at 1367 Mt. Vernon Avenue, said he sees a new attitude at the Chamber and wants to be a part of helping that new attitude to take root and grow.

"When I was a member of the Chamber over 20 years ago, I came to the place where I felt they just weren't interested in helping to promote and advance business on the Near Eastside," Brown said.

"So when (Chamber Vice President) Ralph Smithers, approached me a while back and asked me to join again, I was understandably skeptical."

Brown's skepticism faded after he examined the Chamber's activities directed toward inner city economic development. He was equally impressed with the Chamber's aggressive minority recruitment efforts.

"When I see people like Ralph (Smithers) and Ako Kambon being put in key positions down there, and I see the Chamber actually beginning to play an active role in this community—in a positive and supportive way—then I have ample reason to believe that this organization deserves my involvement and support," Brown said.

The Rev. Jerome H. Ross is not a businessman. So why has the pastor of Tridstone Baptist Church become a member of the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce?

"Historically, the Black church has been intimately involved in promoting community advancement. We are as concerned about the economic well-being of our community as we are about spiritual well-being. In fact, we feel that in many ways they are inextricably linked," the pastor said.

"That is why, when Ako Kambon suggested that I consider becoming a member, I was receptive. I believe that the Chamber can be an important instrument for economic development in the Black community and I want to be a part of that effort."

When Les Wright founded her janitorial service five years ago, joining the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce was not high on her list of priorities. Now that she has become a member, she says she sees the organization in a different light.

"Had I known what I know now about things like the health benefits plan for employers and workers, the seminars and workshops on business topics, and the problem-solving hotline, I probably would have joined on the spot," Ms. Wright says.

"Anybody starting out in business needs all the help they can get. Through the Chamber, I gain access to information and resources that will help me in improving my service, marketing my product, and establishing valuable contacts."

"Most importantly, I think the Chamber is making the right moves toward becoming involved in supporting and promoting the interests of Black business. As a member, I'm glad to know I'm helping to make that happen."

Jackson's son to keynote 4th anniversary of WCKX

Johnnathan Jackson, the son of former presidential candidate Jesse Jackson, will be the keynote speaker at the 4th annual community awards banquet of radio station WCKX this Saturday, Oct. 15. The event will be held at Point Three, Morse Rd., and Cleveland Ave., at 6 p.m.

WCKX began airing a full blown Black format on Oct. 15, 1984, and became the only Black-owned radio station in Central Ohio's history.

Awards will be made to area citizens who've demonstrated "excellence in business, community service, communications, public service, and education."

A special "Citizen of the Year" award will be made to one of the persons chosen by the station as "Citizen of the Week" over the past year.

The "Citizen of the Week" program, which airs daily, is produced by the WCKX public affairs director, Ella Coleman.

Jack Harris, president and general manager of WCKX, told the Call and Post Point Three was chosen as the site for the 4th anniversary event, "...because my wife and daughters want to show off the improvements we've made to their club."

The club has been expanded and updated, and a second dance floor added. After the banquet Point Three will be open to the general public.

Postal authority to dedicate country's largest facility to Les Shaw, first Black postmaster

By WALI BELL
Call and Post staff reporter

The United States Postal Service is returning the favor of a good friend.

Leslie Nelson Shaw, Columbus, Ohio native, humanitarian, and Los Angeles' first Black postmaster will be honored by the postal service when they dedicate the new general mail facility in his name Friday, Oct. 21 in Los Angeles, California.

The mail processing facility, in its final construction stages, will house the largest single-story post office in the country. The facility, with a $151 million price tag, is expected to be finally completed this February, according to postal officials.

Legislation to approve the naming of the facility for Shaw was introduced into the House of Representatives by U.S. Rep. Mervyn Dymally, (D-Hawthorne) and approved by congress in 1986.

The 1.1 million square foot facility is located in an economically depressed area of Los Angeles and will have high beneficial effect on the community, postal officials said.

According to postal officials, Postmaster Charles W. King will preside over the ceremony to which more than 600 guests have been invited including Postmaster General Anthony Frank, Mayor Tom Bradley, Congressmen Mervyn Dymally and Gus Hawkins and many other government officials.

Also expected to attend is Ann Shaw, widow of Leslie Shaw and sister Kate Shaw Carmichael.

Carmichael said she is hoping to make the trip. She said there are some last minute details which may prevent her from going.

"I'm still hoping to make it. I just think it's marvelous. It's a wonderful thing to happen their naming the facility after him," Carmichael said.

She said Shaw was quite deserving of the honor of having the facility dedicated in his honor.

"He was involved in people. He did all he could for people's well being because it was instilled in him by his father, a policeman who cared for the social well being of the people in his area.

"His father never got or wanted to get credit for helping people beyond his duties as a policeman," she said.

She said she was very proud everyone recognized Shaw for being such a fine human being and a fine man.

"It is no more than what he deserved," she said.

Shaw, the first Black postmaster of a major U.S. city, was postmaster from 1963 to 1969. After leaving the postal service, Shaw spent 16 years as vice president and director of community affairs for Great Western Financial Corporation.

Leslie Nelson Shaw died March 7, 1985.

HONORED — The late Leslie Nelson Shaw will be honored Oct. 21 when the United States Postal Service dedicates its largest postal facility in his name. Shaw was the first Black postmaster of a major city during his tenure in Los Angeles from 1963 to 1969.

Safety director forms hate crimes police unit

By WALI BELL
Call and Post Staff Writer

Columbus Safety Director Alphonso Montgomery announced at a recent city council meeting, the formation of a Hate Crimes Unit to address crimes motivated by sex, race, color or ethnic origin.

Montgomery, responding to queries from city council members, said the idea for the unit originated six to eight months ago in a meeting with Columbus Police Chief Dwight Joseph.

"We did not think of the idea to address specifically any particular incidents and is not tied to any incidents on the West-side," Montgomery said.

Montgomery said many larger cities have racial problems and have existing hate crime units.

Three detectives dedicated to investigating crimes which are ethnically motivated were placed under Capt. McCormick of the Organized Crime Task Force, Montgomery said.

"They are not just checking out crimes that may be racially motivated, but also anti-semitic and gender oriented crimes as well," Montgomery explained.

City Council member Ben Espy said the formation of the Hate Crime Unit was totally new to city council and questioned why it was formed and how effective the unit would be.

"What gave rise to this racial aspect of city administration if they say it's not a problem," Espy said.

"We must have more of a serious problem than we thought," Espy said, questioning the extent of racial tension in the city.

"What are their powers. What experience do they have. Have they been trained. These questions have to be addressed.

Montgomery said he was not convinced Columbus is experiencing a wave of crime which is ethnically motivated.

"I don't see it as a forerunner of any real problems," Montgomery said.

City Council member Cynthia Cecil-Lazarus said she thinks there is a problem.

"The chief must believe there is a problem or they would not have established a structure under him," Cecil-Lazarus said.

"If you have one problem and fail to address it, it causes two problems. The original problem and the failure to address it," she said.

"In terms of experience of personnel and training, these are appropriate questions he (Espy) brought up," she said.

Montgomery said it was not necessary to keep everyone informed of police operations and not telling city council about the newly formed unit was not by design.

"Many police operations we start up without advance notification. We are constantly reorganizing, such as the mid watch program and the Juvenile Task Force, and it is not always discussed with council," Montgomery said.

MAMMOTH—At 1.1 million square feet, the new Leslie Nelson Shaw, Sr. General Mail Facility will be the largest post office in the country. The $151 million facility is expected to be completed by February 1989.

Roast Quayle

On Wednesday, Oct. 5, the American people learned why they would be wise not to want Dan Quayle as vice-president of the United States. They also learned that the press -- at least the press in this case -- are insensitive to many of the important issues facing Black people in this nation today.

First to Quayle. He demonstrated, unfortunately, what many already had claimed about him -- that he was a lightweight, a product of privilege, and insensitive to those who had nothing.

He failed to appreciate the federal role in providing services such as immunizations; in protecting the health needs of veterans; in providing food for the hungry. He simplistically equates support for every weapon dreamed up by the Pentagon planners as being "pro-military," and opposition to any -- on any grounds -- as being "anti-military."

He parroted the Reagan line on help for the poor -- even as, when asked the last time he visited the poor personally, he mentioned one experience with some poor at a food bank -- and never mentioned the time when that occurred.

In fact, Quayle has already demonstrated, in his record in the U.S. Senate, that he has little commitment to programs for the poor. In supporting the Reagan administration line consistently, he has voted against billions of dollars in support for poor families -- support which cannot be replaced by an occasional food bank.

The debate demonstrated that Quayle is a man who has little empathy for the plight of those who are poor, and also is prone to giving simplistic answers to difficult, complicated questions. While he did not make a major mistake, or put his foot in his mouth, he did nothing to distinguish himself as a man who would be a worthy successor to George Bush if the team were elected.

What was also disturbing, and enlightening, about this debate, however, had nothing to do with either Lloyd Bentsen or Dan Quayle, and very much to do with the absolute lack of Black participation in this process.

For the second time, there were no Blacks asking questions of the candidates. And, for the second time, issues of importance to Blacks -- like enforcement of the civil rights laws or affirmative action -- were not even addressed in the forums.

The questioners asked about everything else -- from enforcement of occupational safety laws to environmental issues to which books the candidates had read recently -- without even addressing issues which were critical to 30 million American citizens and more, including all those who have been discriminated against because of race, or sex, or ethnic background.

It is disappointing to see this kind of blind spot in the selection, and questioning, of the reporters. Blacks are part of this nation, and part of the news profession, and should be represented in the debates.

Blacks and Wendy's

On Friday, Oct. 7, NAACP President Benjamin Hooks met with officials from Wendy's to discuss the 1984 agreement between the NAACP and the Columbus-based fast-food franchiser. The meeting was important, as a means to reinforce the civil rights organization's continued surveillance of the company's effort to carry out the terms of its previous agreement.

Wendy's is the third-largest fast-food franchiser in the world. Yet, it has lagged behind some other franchisers in its efforts to expand ownership among Blacks.

The NAACP was also calling on Wendy's to increase the number of Blacks in senior management. Across the country, not only the inclusion of Blacks into major corporations, but also the attitudes of the Reagan administration's anti-civil rights program has taken hold, but those Blacks already in major corporations have discovered a "glass ceiling" which seems to limit their opportunity for advancement.

Efforts like those of the NAACP are needed in order to break down the continuing barriers to Black opportunity, both in employment and business development. Wendy's can become a partner with the Black community to help increase opportunity for Black entrepreneurs and prospective employees. We are pleased to see the NAACP forcing Wendy's to keep its promise.

Justice for Tawana

When Tawana Brawley was found in the town of Wappingers, N.Y. on November 28, 1987, she was in a plastic garbage bag, covered with dog feces, with hate phrases scratched on her body. She charged that she had been raped and sodomized by six white men.

In the 10 months since that scene, much has happened. There have been charges of a coverup by her associates, Rev. Al Sharpton and attorneys Alton Maddox and C. Vernon Mason; there have been investigations, including the one by the grand jury; there have been hundreds of lines of newspaper copy written, demonstrations against racism, subpoenas which the Brawley family have refused to honor, attacks on the credibility of the state attorney general, who was handling the case, and a general circus.

But, sadly, there has been no justice for Tawana Brawley. This teenager, who had been through something in the period between November 24 and 28, 1987, was continuing to be the object of a traumatic experience, based on the needs and ambitions of those around her.

Now, the grand jury empaneled to evaluate the case has determined that it was a hoax. They found that the evidence presented was inconsistent with Tawana's claim that she had been sexually assaulted, or even out in the weather for four days; that she had been seen climbing into the garbage bag in which she was found of her own volition; and that two men who had been accused of being part of the Brawley attackers were in no way connected with the offense.

Tawana Brawley and her backers, naturally, have branded the grand jury investigation as a whitewash. And, the grand jury report is not itself a definitive statement. If charges were brought against the Brawleys and their advisers for their behavior, it would be possible to hear both sides of the story in a court of law, and the truth would come out.

But the case is still instructive in a number of areas. It demonstrates, even more clearly, the need for reasoned calm even when we are confronted with what appears to be heinous crimes. The Brawley incident had been cited nationwide as an example of resurgent racism in America.

That the incident may not have occurred does not, in itself, indicate that racism is no longer a problem; indeed, there are a number of other incidents, easily verifiable, which will prove that indictment. But it is important in any indictment of American society to at least have the facts straight, and to proceed only with the facts.

It also demonstrates the need for responsible Black leadership to take the lead when confronted with those who would generate controversy and exacerbate racial polarity for their own purposes. Whatever comes out in a trial, it is clear that the Brawley advisers were men who were using the anguish of a 16-year-old child to make a broader point about American society -- and not truly looking out for the interests of that child in the process.

They made claims which were exaggerated and unproven; they instructed their client to defy the law; they personally and publicly accused people who the grand jury found were perfectly innocent of any wrongdoing. And, sadly, they were able to do this because many in the responsible Black leadership refused, particularly early in the case, to address the issue head-on.

The dictionary describes "justice" as "reward or penalty as deserved." In that sense, this poor child deserves justice. But all of us must be careful that, in our zeal to attack every vestige of racism, we do not respond too hastily and too intemperately to every charge. Then, there will be justice -- for Tawana and others like her.

Miller statewide!?

The prime rib is medium-well, the cheesecake is tasty and the ambiance at the Hyatt on Capital Square is inviting. At the $125-per-head fundraiser for State Rep. Ray Miller, the livin' is easy, and the talk turns away from the immediate event at hand -- a reelection campaign against a Republican opponent -- and what everyone in the room knows is the real purpose for the event: To prepare Ray Miller for statewide office.

The featured speaker for the fundraiser, Vern Riffe, speaks his admiration of Miller for doing some which Riffe has mastered -- raising big money. The Miller fundraiser generated over $60,000 for the campaign -- far in excess of what candidates for Ohio House of Representative seats usually raise, particularly when it is an incumbent with weak opposition.

Riffe goes on to praise Miller for being one of the best-prepared and best-trained members of the Ohio House. A litany of other speakers applaud his intelligence, integrity and commitment.

But the bottom line for everyone is not, of course, the immediate opponent, but a bigger opponent two years hence: A statewide bugbear that has never been conquered by a Black candidate.

Blacks have won statewide office across the country, even in a southern state like Virginia, where Douglas Wilder is now a heart-beat away from the governor's chair and will probably run for governor when the incumbent's four-year term expires.

CAPITOL COMMENTS
By GILBERT PRICE

No Black however, has ever won statewide elective office in a contested race in Ohio. The only previous Black statewide officeholder, former Supreme Court Justice Robert M. Duncan, was elected in a deal with Democrats, who agreed not to oppose Duncan if their candidate for another Supreme Court post, Leonard Stern, was also unopposed.

Miller recognizes the pitfalls, and is working around them. He makes the obligatory coy remarks -- "I've got to win my election first" -- but it is clear that, in a district where he has never received less than 64 percent of the vote and last time got 70 percent -- he is unlikely to be defeated.

Miller says that, in order to run statewide, the candidate must "lay the proper groundwork years before the election." He, in fact, has been laying that groundwork since 1986, when, at the Black Elected Democrats of Ohio annual convention -- after Cong. Louis Stokes bemoaned the lack of a Black on the statewide Demo-least 20 of the state's 88 counties, including rural, predominately-white areas where Black candidates seldom go. He has also begun to identify people in key counties to help run field operations in 1990, and has been lining up statewide support from Democratic party leaders for his candidacy.

He is also raising money -- the kind of money it will take to run, and win, a statewide post. The $125-a-plate dinner is not usually connected to a state representative's race, and Miller knows that those who gave were probably not giving simply to help him gain re-election.

The challenge is a big one, but not an impossible one. Miller has already proven he can gain white votes: a 70 percent margin in a district only 35 percent Black already demonstrates that. Now, he is hoping to expand that base statewide, and take Black political empowerment to the next logical step.

To smoke or not

Before the surgeon general calls for the National Guard to interdict cigarettes, let's examine smoking issues. The key issue isn't the health of smokers, or the nuisance and possible harm to bystanders; it's property rights: the right to keep, acquire, use and dispose of one's property as one sees fit.

Virtually everyone would agree you have the right to smoke and create a nuisance, and possible harm the non-smokers in your own house. Why? You own the air in your house and can decide how that air will be used. Anyone offended by your smoking can simply choose not to visit your house. Or, if he wishes, offer to pay you not to smoke in his presence.

On the other hand, you have the right to prevent others from smoking in your house, because you own the air and can decide how it can be used in your home.

It's not an issue of whether "passive" smoke harms you or not, it's a matter of property rights. What advice would you give a person who said, "I go to Williams' house, and I'm really bothered by cigarette smoke?" You'd probably counsel the person against such visits.

The more difficult issue involves cigarette smoking in other places, but considering property rights can help us there as well. Should smoking be allowed on airplanes, in restaurants, or in the workplace? The answer is not that different from whether smoking should be allowed in your home. It should depend on the wishes of the owner of the airplane, restaurant, or workplace. People can simply choose whether they want to use (or work in) a facility based on its smoking policy. "But," you say, "people have the right to work eight hours in a smoke-free environment!" That's right, but do they have a right to dictate how an owner will use his property? Suppose your friend was my maid, and complained to you about cigarette smoke in my house -- her place of employment. You'd probably counsel her to either get another job or put up with the cigarette smoke.

The more difficult case comes in instances where there are no clear private property rights. This would be the case of publicly owned facilities such as airports, federal, state, and municipal office buildings, and schools. Who owns the air in these places? If non-smokers own the property, then clearly they have the right to declare these places to be smoke-free; the opposite applies if smokers own the property. It just happens that the courts and federal regulatory bodies have decided this aspect of property rights in favor of non-smokers.

property is privately owned. The use of police powers in matters essentially private are offensive to most Americans; however, centering the smoking issue on harm allows some people to get a better night's sleep after using state force to impose their values on others.

"But the government is supposed to protect us from harm," you argue. Using that argument, the government could ban mining, playing football, driving, swimming, and a host of other activities. "Williams," you say, "that's not the point; government's supposed to prevent us from harming others!" When I married my wife, or decided to teach at George Mason University, I harmed other women and other universities; they lost the opportunity to contact me.

The job of government is to prevent one person from violating another's property rights. Government bans or restrictions against smoking on privately owned property is an unconstitutional usurpation of power.

Declining incomes; Black poverty on the rise

By JOHN E. JACOB

Call and Post contributing writer

You may have seen headlines last month proclaiming a dip in the poverty rate. Don't believe it. Poverty declined slightly among whites, but the Black rate actually rose.

According to the Census Bureau, about 800,000 whites left the poverty rolls in 1987, bringing the white poverty rate down to 10.5 percent from the previous year's 11 percent.

But almost 700,000 additional Blacks became poor in 1987, bringing the Black poverty rate up to 33.1 percent — a jump of two percentage points above the 1986 rate.

We had plenty of company, too. The Hispanic poverty rate also went up, as some 360,000 more Hispanics became poor.

The Census Bureau's report also showed a further decline in Black income. Median family income for whites rose by $300 to $30,852. But for Blacks, the median family income decline by $149 to only $18,098.

What's going on here? We're supposed to be on an economic roll, but the "recovery" appears to be highly selective, concentrating gains among the better-off.

The Census report shows that there's been a 20-year trend, accelerating in the past several years, in which the rich have become richer and the poor, poorer.

People in the top 20 percent of the income scale have increased their share of the national income by several percentage points since 1967, while the middle and the bottom have been squeezed. The poorest 20 percent have actually lost almost a fifth of their share of the nation's income.

You'd think such explosive figures would be part of the presidential election campaign, but it's just purring along without the candidates confronting the national scandal of increased income inequality and growing minority poverty.

Unfortunately, election campaigns appear to be the time to avoid critical national issues, rather than a time for educating the public to the needs and presenting policies that deal with them.

But once this election is decided, I propose that the president-elect immediately convene a task force to come up with achievable goals and policies that reverse the growth in poverty.

Such an effort should have bi-partisan support, because this is a crisis that demands an approach like the consensus that led to the Marshall Plan back in the 1940s — massive intervention backed by both parties.

The task force should focus on achievable goals — concrete steps in education, welfare and social policies, job training and creation — that provide opportunities for people to move out of poverty.

Continuing on the present path inevitably leads to higher poverty levels and to a split-level society that will be unable to function in a competitive world economy.

Those Census Bureau figures demand immediate action, but no one seems to be listening. I suspect that the candidate who takes this issue and runs with it can win the election.

For George Bush, who says he's "haunted" by inner-city poverty, a strong stand on this issue could help among the many voters who reject the callous federal policies that have led to more poverty.

And for Michael Dukakis, this issue could galvanize his natural constituency and generate the excitement and loyalty he must have to win on Election Day.

It's time to get loud

Last Friday night I attempted to make an adventure out of cleaning my house and I listened to Kurt Bishop on WKVO. He played a record that made me turn the vacuum off and sit down.

It was song about a young teen mom who ran into her baby's father after four years. The baby is four years old. It was an incredible song of pain, joy, and realism. After she sang of the newly discovered life within herself and her ability to overcome the odds, the young man said he felt stupid. She said, "You should." And the record ends. The message was loud and clear. It moved me. I was excited. What a message to young women who are raising their children without the support of the child's father. It made me sad to know the kind of struggles she had to overcome to be able to talk about the love and light within.

Thinking of her words and her song gave me what I needed to write about. I've been thinking about suggesting an agenda item for African American women, in our city. The recommendation is that we become more politically conscious about our everyday lives. The agenda item is our children and ourselves.

It's a good time to do it. Black women are suffering more than ever and on every level. And of course, where we go our children follow. Sometimes you have to be seen and heard. It's time to get loud.

Do we have a list of things to discuss with Bush and Dukakis? What are the burning issues that Black women are concerned about? What is it that we want? This isn't a recommended item for a political agenda just for Black women. It's for all women who are also oppressed because of their race and cultural heritage.

What can Dukakis and the Democratic party do for the sisters who they talk about the most? You know, the one who runs her own household on one income, raises her children almost (literally) by herself, who can't get medical benefits and can't get a decent job. What can they do for her? Will the Republican party help Black business women make more money if they get in office? Will the interest on loans go down so that Black families can live in better homes? What will the Republican party do to increase the warrants of mothers with dependent children?

We're a major consumer of goods and services. That must account for something. Actually, we've got too many goods and services and they keep our families dysfunctional.

The African American woman, today, is not ignorant about her condition or what's happening to her children. Who could she tell that could do something?

Telling these two white men, Bush and Dukakis, about our problems may not make a big difference but at least they'll know that we know what's going on. And that's more than what we've let them know in a long time.

So let's get loud, sisters. Get educated on the issues that affect your children's lives and your lives. Ask questions.

Start to talk about child care issues, parental leave, the low wages so many of us have to make; and while we're at it, let's get a real understanding of why they keep putting out a new drug for our men to try.

Aren't they satisfied that 47 percent of Black women are without fathers for their children and husbands for their homes?

I have not seen a white man yet, who was running for office, who spoke to poor Black women about what they could do for them. They usually don't worry about us because they think we're too oppressed to get angry and too scared of retribution.

Fool them this time and vote.

They don't consider our votes. There's 13 million of us and at least half of us can vote. We've got the numbers. We need to use them.

In that song by teen mother she sang of a love and light that she was feeling withing herself and she talked about a new kind of relationship with God. Well, the love of a Black woman is known far and wide when it comes to her children and her man. And everybody knows how we feel about God. So, what's holding us back??

Voting for a representative

As a Black female living on the southeast side, I feel it is time for a change.

Our present state representative has represented the 32nd House District for ten years. In that time it would seem that a large amount of progress should have been made in our area. After all, didn't a monthly magazine rate him as an effective legislator?

The effect that I have seen is to make the southeast corner of Franklin County a dumping zone. Columbus powers have succeeded in keeping hazardous waste out of downtown and sending it around the outer belt.

Of course a rendering plant or a dump or a jail would not be placed in a politically powerful neighborhood.

Is our present representative an effective legislator because he represents us well, or because he makes great deals that keep the other legislators, Republicans and Democrats alike, happy.

This year I am voting for a representative, not a legislator. I am voting for Dennis White. It is time for someone to start looking out for us, not his political career.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Wilma Dukes
Columbus, OH.

God is with you

I want to congratulate, yes, congratulate, Rev. C. Dexter Wise III, pastor of Shiloh Baptist Church, 720 Mount Vernon Avenue for viewing the film "The Last Temptation". His comments in the Dispatch, Wednesday, August 31, 1988, were exceedingly timely, contained good common sense, and sparked with wisdom.

Yes, I agree that sin is unsettling. As my late husband often said, however, "You can't run from Satan; therefore, you had better know what's in this world." Hence, knowledge gives understanding and understanding gives wisdom to conquer sin.

Rev. Wise truly demonstrated that Christians don't live in a dark box. We live by faith -- that invisible, invincible spirit that the world can't understand -- not fear. The Christ we serve is in our hearts. The moral responsibility is within. We know our mission.

We also remember that "For we have not a high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin" (Hebrews 4:15).

Therefore, let Hollywood continue showing dreams. They make us wiser because we know Christ did not yield, and we will not yield. We can look but not be tarnished.

Our victory comes from doing the word not just hearing it. And "In all these things we (Christians) are more than conquerors through Him that loved us" (Romans 8:37).

Again, thanks Rev. Wise for letting the world know that God is with you no matter where you are.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Nannie Childs

Remember many have died for the right to vote

The right to vote is precious. For it, lives have been given and lives taken brutally. Because they died, the secured right to vote is yours. The list is long, tragic and blood-spattered of Blacks who have died for the right to vote—for your right to vote.

Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Medgar Evers, Vernon Dahmer, Jimmie Lee Jackson, Louis Allen, James Chaney, Herbert Lee, Rev. George Lee, and Lamar Smith are included.

Whites too have lost their lives for the right of Blacks to vote: Rev. James Reeb, Mrs. Viola Liuzzo, Michael Schwerner, and Andrew Goodman.

The end of injustice begins at the ballot box. Use it for your sake and for the sake of those who died for it.

Pvt. 1st Class Cheryl A. Smith, daughter of Toni C. Smith of Mitzi Drive and granddaughter of Mary T. Woods of S. Champion Ave., both of Columbus, Ohio, has completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

Minority retention is subject of conference

A statewide "Conference on the Retention of Minority Students: Setting the Ohio Agenda for the Twenty-First Century" will be held in Columbus, Ohio, on January 10-11, 1989.

The conference, which is jointly sponsored by The Ohio State University Division of Student Affairs and University College, will be of particular interest to professional staff of universities and colleges in offices of the Provost, Dean of Students, Academic Affairs, Student Affairs, Residence Life, Student Counseling and Minority Affairs.

The program features two keynote speakers, Dr. Vincent Tinto is Professor of Sociology and Education as well as Director of Cultural Foundations of Education at Syracuse University. He has published extensively in the area of student retention. Dr. Elsa Nunez-Wormack is Associate Dean of Faculty at The College of Staten Island, The City University of New York. She has provided leadership in the education of minority students and in retention programs.

The primary focus of the conference, in the form of formal presentations, special interest sessions, and panel discussions, is one of concentrating and coordinating efforts toward retention of minority students within the State of Ohio. The program leaders will address state and national policy issues in this regard and, it is hoped, the conference will be able to formulate resolutions and recommendations for the success of future retention programs.

For a brochure and registration information contact The Ohio State University Department of Conferences & Institutes, Box 21878, Columbus, Ohio 43221, (614) 292-8571.

Poussaint to address adoptions luncheon

The Black Family Connections Advisory Committee has volunteered its time and talents to promote Black adoptions within Franklin County.

Their latest project is sponsoring a dinner featuring Dr. Alvin Poussaint, noted author, psychiatrist and consultant to The Cosby Show.

The dinner is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 25 at 6:30 p.m. at the Hilton East. Donations for tickets are $20 per person and tables of ten are available for $200.

On the program for the evening will be the Mifflin High School Chorale, directed by Beverly Staples and a skit performed by Center Stage Theater.

Sponsors for the dinner are Michael Burrell of All Supplies Inc.; Gary Roan of Society Bank; Donald Tidwell of United Construction Equipment; and Deputy Chief Jackson of the Columbus Police Department.

Tickets are still available for the dinner.

For ticket information, please call Black Family Connections at 252-0900.

Black Family Connections (BFC) the Black adoption unit of Franklin County Children's Services was established in 1983. Since its inception, the adoption placements of Black children have doubled and adoptions of Black children over seven years of age have tripled.

However, according to Terry Boyd, BFC chairperson, the need for Black adoptive families is constant.

"In spite of our success, there are still over 70 Black children waiting to be adopted," said Boyd.

NAACP unanimously votes to impose JCPenney boycott

By WALI BELL
Call and Post Staff Writer

The executive board of the Columbus chapter of the NAACP has voted unanimously to impose a limited boycott against JCPenney stores starting Oct. 21, if the company does not meet their conditions, the Call and Post has learned.

The boycott against JCPenney was the result of an Aug. 13 incident in which Columbus Call and Post City Editor Ted Oshodi and his wife were detained against their will for over two hours by Columbus police officer Ronald Moss and JCPenney security personnel, Cornell McCleary, first vice president of the Columbus NAACP, said.

McCleary said the NAACP mailed a letter Oct. 10 to JCPenney stating the demands of the organization which would prevent the boycott.

"Starting Oct. 10, we will publicly and through all media sources available to us, urge citizens of this community to not make any purchases at JCPenney stores. If they have any credit cards, turn them in. And if they have merchandise which is returnable, to return it," McCleary explained.

McCleary said the NAACP does not want the community to invoke these actions prior to Oct. 21.

"We will impose the limited boycott against JCPenney, if after seven days from the receipt of our demands, they do not act upon them," he said.

Listed in the demands, McCleary said the NAACP wants the following concessions from JCPenney:

- *To make a settlement with the Ted Oshodi family for the public embarrassment and humiliation they suffered while in the custody of JCPenney employees.
- *To make a complete public apology to Ted Oshodi and the community for the actions of JCPenney employees relating to the Aug. 13 incident.
- *To issue a policy or directive to all JCPenney employees specifically condemning such actions by its employees regardless of the employees status or job description with the company.
- *That a copy of that policy or directive be sent to the NAACP office.

"It is unfortunate that the amount of time that has transpired since the incident and our final decision to act, that JCPenney did not act on its own," McCleary explained.

McCleary said it was very disappointing that in spite of clear and concise facts relating to JCPenney employees actions that JCPenney chose to publicly condone their actions.

"Black people and all conscientious citizens of this community should be outraged that JCPenney, a major corporation, is disregarding its civic and social responsibilities to advocate equity in its work environment," McCleary said.

In the military

Cadet Richard J. Korecki Jr., son of Richard J. Korecki Sr. of Woodland Park, Colo., and Donna L. Nahorny of Starr Ave., Dregon, Ohio, received practical work in military leadership at the U.S. Army ROTC advanced camp, Fort Lewis, Wash.

The six-week camp, attended by cadets normally between their third and fourth year of college, includes instruction in communications, management and survival training.

Successful completion of the advanced camp and graduation from college results in a commission as a second lieutenant in either the U.S. Army, Army Reserve or National Guard for the cadet.

Korecki is a student at DeVry Institute of Technology, Columbus, Ohio.

Dem candidate drops out

If there was ever any doubt, it appears that the election of Cong. John Kasich to a fourth term is assured, as challenger Michael Gelpi has dropped out of the 12th district congressional race due to health problems.

Gelpi, an admitted homosexual who was running as an independent, cited heart problems as his reason for quitting the race.

Gelpi was endorsed by the Franklin County Democratic Party. The candidate who ran unopposed in the May 3 Democratic primary, Mark Brown, is a follower of right-wing extremist Lyndon LaRouche.

Two lawyer groups have endorsed attorney Eve Stratton over incumbent Richard Letts in his campaign to be the first Black elected to the Common Pleas Court in Franklin County.

The Franklin County Trial Lawyers' Association favored

Stratton over Letts. A Bar Association poll showed that the 1,421 attorneys voting preferred Stratton by a margin of 55-45 percent.

Letts is the former chief criminal attorney for the Columbus office of the U.S. Attorney for the Southern Ohio district.

In the statewide races for the Ohio Supreme Court, the Ohio State Bar Association has proclaimed a toasup: the statewide lawyers' group has rated all four candidates as "recommended."

Incumbent Justice A. William Sweeney, a Democrat, is being challenged by former Ohio Sen. Paul Matia, a Republican, in one race. In the other, 6th District Appeals Judge Alice Robie Resnick of Toledo will face 9th District Appeals Judge Joyce George of Akron. One of them will replace retired Justice Ralph Locher, and become the first woman to sit on the Ohio

Supreme Court in 60 years.

George Voinovich is a "superb" candidate, according to former President Gerald Ford. Ford appeared with Voinovich in Columbus at a press conference to urge Sen. Howard Metzenbaum to debate.

Metzenbaum has said that he would debate Voinovich, currently the mayor of Cleveland, after the Senate adjourned. The Senate adjourned last week.

In the meantime, a Columbus Dispatch poll showed Metzenbaum with a commanding lead over his challenger. Metzenbaum was favored by the voters by a 55-38 margin in the poll, which has a strong record for accuracy.

Reception held for FCC candidate DeMoss

On Sept. 22, a reception was held for Hugh DeMoss, candidate for Franklin County Commissioner, at the Martin Luther King Jr. Center For Cultural and Performing Arts. DeMoss was greeted positively by members of the minority community, showing their support of his candidacy to return to the office he previously held some four years prior to this election.

DeMoss stated his intentions to service the needs of the minority community in the areas of affirmative action policies, employment, minority business development, minority set-asides, and economical development throughout the Franklin County public and private sectors. More specifically, DeMoss spoke to the need for equity and parity across the board for minorities in the areas of administrative, professional, and paraprofessional employment categories within the Franklin County Government. DeMoss commented on the need for inclusion and improvement within the existing system and guaranteed his support if elected.

DeMoss reminded individuals of the necessity to be true to their commitments of improving the quality of life for the total minority community and pledged himself and his candidacy as a vehicle to be used to attain these objectives.

DeMoss urged all members of the minority community to increase their political awareness and participation levels in our political process in order to guarantee themselves a brighter future as we approach the year 2000. DeMoss concluded by stating to achieve such a future the work, involvement, and inclusion must start today.

HUGH DeMOSS, right, a candidate for the Franklin County Commission, shares political views with Marvin Jones and Tonya Carter during a recent reception at the MLK Center.

Seminar set Oct. 22

State says not accepting bond would modify process

Ohio Department of Administrative Service officials said the bond for Tab Trucking Co. owner Leroy Anderson had to be accepted because changes could result in an illegal post bid modification, the Call and Post has learned.

Gretchen Hull, spokesperson for the Ohio Department of Administrative Services, said concerns were raised after the bidding process was completed and waiving the bond would have amounted to post bid modification.

"We would have had to rebid the project. We would have been penalizing the minority company who incurred some financial obligation," she said, referring to Anderson's company.

Representatives Otto Beatty Jr., said that Black business owners Leroy Anderson and Jim Jacobs had to meet extraneous requirements to obtain bonding to retain their state contract.

Anderson, owner of Tab and Son Trucking Co., and Jacobs, owner of Jacob and Son Moving and Storage Co., were awarded a $56,000 state contract to move office equipment and files of the Department of Development to the new Riffe Tower on High Street.

Anderson said he had to end his agreement with Jacobs' company and include Lavender and Co., a white firm, as subcontractors in the agreement in order to gain surety to retain his awarded contract.

According to the service agreement between Tab and Son Trucking Co. and Lavender and Co., Anderson agreed to pay Lavender and Co. $39,000 of the $56,000 contract to perform and supply all labor, materials and equipment necessary to fill the obligations of the contract.

Melanie Jurca, General Counsel for Administrative Services, said if there were extraneous circumstances involved, it was beyond the control of administrative services.

"It is beyond our control to regulate bonding companies. We raised the issue of the bonding company with the department of insurance," Jurca explained.

"If the bonding company acted improperly, the company would have to work with the department of insurance to recoup any improper cost," Jurca said.

Hull said the department of administrative services is reviewing bid specifications and bond requirements for set-aside contracts.

"My director has asked for recommendations from EEO coordinator Gil Price, relative to this experience, he is also working with the Affirmative Action Task Force to pursue legislation in the bonding area with developing minority business people," Hull explained.

"We are also reviewing our bid specifications and bond requirements for the set-aside program and reviewing MBE (Minority Business Enterprise) certification criteria as it relates to subcontractors," Hull said.

"10 Reasons why we must work for, fight for, vote for Michael Dukakis."

Reverend Jesse Jackson

- 1. HIS VIEW OF GOVERNMENT Gov. Dukakis sees government as public service, acting to protect ordinary people. Mr. Bush sees government as an instrument to protect corporations, the rich, and established private interests.
- 2. HIS VIEW OF SECURITY Gov. Dukakis supports a strong military. But to truly be secured, our nation must also have strong values, a strong economy, and strong health and education systems. Mr. Bush would waste more of our scarce resources on weapons that we do not need and must never use, while we become less secure and more dependent on foreign energy, foreign capital.
- 3. HIS COMMITMENT TO JUSTICE Gov. Dukakis will build bridges between people, where the Reagan-Bush administration has driven wedges between them, dividing us by race, sex, religion and class.

Gov. Dukakis supports increasing the minimum wage. He will end the merger mania that purges workers and submerges our economy. He favors a National Labor Relations Board that is a mediation and not a strike-breaking board. Gov. Dukakis will enforce workplace health and safety laws. Mr. Bush exalts the record of an administration that set out to punish working people, causing a scandalous increase in the number of working people in poverty.

4. HIS SUPPORT FOR WORKERS Gov. Dukakis supports increasing the minimum wage. He will end the merger mania that purges workers and submerges our economy. He favors a National Labor Relations Board that is a mediation and not a strike-breaking board. Gov. Dukakis will enforce workplace health and safety laws. Mr. Bush exalts the record of an administration that set out to punish working people, causing a scandalous increase in the number of working people in poverty.

5. HIS SUPPORT FOR WOMEN Gov. Dukakis understands that too many of the nation's children live in a house where there is no man. He supports pay equity for women. He supports the goals of the ABC Child Care Bill. He has been a strong and outspoken supporter of the Equal Rights Amendment. Mr. Bush opposes the ERA. He has said nothing about comparable worth for women. Only after seven years of inaction and polls showing women don't support him did Bush finally make a rhetorical commitment to child care.

6. HIS COMMITMENT TO A REAL WAR ON DRUGS Gov. Dukakis will wage a comprehensive war on drugs—from the countries where the drugs are grown to the streets where they are sold to the suites where the money is laundered. Mr. Bush was head of the drug interdiction task force and did nothing. He was head of the CIA while Noriega was on the government payroll and said nothing. His current pose to get tough on drug dealers is similarly worth nothing.

7. HIS PLEDGE TO EDUCATION Gov. Dukakis has a program to fund college education for all students. He will increase our investment in education. He understands that our nation will thrive only if our children can learn. Mr. Bush said nothing while the administration cut scholarships and limited loans even as a college education grew more expensive.

8. HIS COMMITMENT TO PEACE IN CENTRAL AMERICA Gov. Dukakis opposes aid to the contras in Nicaragua and supports a negotiated regional plan for peace in Central America. He understands that our future lies in increased trade, investment and growth in Latin America. Mr. Bush endorses a failed policy of war and disruption in Central America, and to this day has not owned up to his knowledge of the trade of drugs for guns with the contras, or his support for sending bibles, cakes and guns to the Ayatollah in Iran.

9. HIS COMMITMENT TO JUSTICE IN SOUTH AFRICA Gov. Dukakis agrees that South Africa is a terrorist state. He is fully committed to comprehensive sanctions against South Africa. If he is elected, the full moral, political and economic strength of the U.S. will stand behind the struggle for freedom of Nelson Mandela. Mr. Bush defends the administration's amoral embrace of apartheid in South Africa.

10. HIS COMMITMENT TO EMPOWERMENT Gov. Dukakis understands that the people must be empowered for justice to prevail. He supports on-site, same day, universal voter registration. He supports DC Statehood. For Mr. Bush empowerment is a threat not a promise.

FASHION NIGHT OF & FIREWORKS

PAMELA BURDETTE IN STYLE — The student will style other fashions "Then, Now, Tomorrow," a benefit for The Ohio State University's Historic Costume and Textiles Collection. Here she is wearing a Trigue's in black Chantilly lace and black sequins over a nude foundation with horn bolero and winged short sleeves. The program will be held Oct. 20 at the Palace Theatre.

The Palace Theatre will explode with TNT Thursday, Oct. 20, 7:30 p.m. when world-famous singer Hildegarde, designer Charles Kleibacker and some of Columbus' most dynamic dancers, musicians and Montaldo models present "Then, Now, Tomorrow," a benefit for The Ohio State University's Historic Costume and Textiles Collection.

The program spotlights 20th century glamour. Hildegarde, who stamped the torchsong with her own incomparable style, closes the first act with some of the numbers she made famous. Pianists Charles Pickens and Art Dekko preside at twin pianos while members of the Van Pelt Dance Ensemble perform memorable dances of the 1920's through the '70s in appropriate clothes from the Kleibacker Group in The Ohio State University's Historic Costume Collection. The second act highlights Montaldo's selection of extravagant 1988 designer couture from the likes of Pauline Trigere, Carolina Herrera, Bill Blass, Oscar de la Renta, Giorgio Armani. TNT also sets the pace for "tomorrow" with clothes designed by innovative young students from across the country.

Tickets are $100 per person for special seating and a post-performance patrons party; $20 per person for orchestra seating, $10 per person for student and senior citizen seating in the balcony. Tickets are available at Montaldo's or by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to TNT, 1787 Neil Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43210. Checks should be made payable to The Ohio State University. (SCENE: A small smoke-filled room littered with typing paper. CHARACTERS: Buzzy Bee and Margeaux). BUZZY BEE: (sitting on a high stool wearing a green plastic visor and a scowl of patient tolerance says) "Margeaux, now please explain to me why you goofed in your article on the Smart Set Club's 25th anniversary gala?"

MARGEUX: (in an apologetic tone with head hung replica) "I guess I just had a lapse of consciousness."

BUZZY BEE: (in a voice like a mother scolding a child continues). "Do you know the difference between the UNIVERSITY CLUB and the ATHLETIC CLUB? Do you know the efforts the Smart Set Club exerted to have their beautiful affair at the ATHLETIC CLUB? Do you apologize for your lapse of consciousness in an otherwise truthful article?"

MARGEUX: (sighs and yells)

BUZZY BEE: "Well, alright; then. I'll forgive you and I know that the ATHLETIC CLUB and the Smart Setters will also. But, you're not off the hook yet. For your punishment, you will not be allowed to have chocolate for two weeks. Now, you may go to your room!!"

(Margeaux responds with a resigned sigh and wonders how she can make it for those two weeks.)

Do you know Mary Lynch, Jennie Ingram, Mary M. Crawford, Clara Williams, Laura Harber, Katherine Kidd, Iris M. Smith, Nancy Brown, Barbara Smith, Evelyn Harris, Mary Jane Byrd, Hattie G. Downs, Betty Scott, Margaret Byrd, Sylvia Clark and Mary Carter? Well, they are all members of the Golden Hearts Charitable Club. Hattie Downs is the president and Betty Scott the Vice. This group of ladies wants to extend their heartfelt thanks to the Columbus community for support given them for their annual luncheon held recently. They thank the luncheon participants, patrons and the contributors of door prizes and souvenirs. In other words, they really are grateful. Also, they are so pleased that the help you gave them allowed them to purchase and donate a piano to The Martin Luther King Jr. Center for the Performing and Cultural Arts.

Their luncheon was pleasant and they were thrilled to see Dr. Glenn Ray, executive director of the Center, try out the piano at the luncheon. John Marshall, member of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra and Opera Columbus was also a participant on the program during the luncheon. Wiley Bates, III, who is a recent graduate of South High School, gave a trumpet and vocal solo accompanied by his mother, popular musician, Donna Bates. Donna, is also the Minister of Music at Reeb-Hosack Community Baptist Church.

Did you mark your calendar for Oct. 22 as I suggested to you last week? Here's why you should. The Arts Committee Inc. is sponsoring "Afrozanza. A Night to Remember" at the MLK Center from 7 to 10 p.m. It promises to be a big hit what with the emcee being Dana Tyler, news anchor of WBNS-TV, and the unique program that is planned.

For example, one part of the evening will feature a gospel talent showcase. Other parts will feature an art show called "Creative Mix" where artists' works can be viewed and purchased and there will be a community arts appreciation reception for artists and guests. It promises to be a treat. Did you know that the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts purchased a handblown glass piece, "The Hunter," created by Bruce Huil, to be a part of their permanent collection at an earlier Afrozanza held in 1972?

Some of the performing artists will be Johnny Duckens (baritone), Rev. Betty White (mezzo soprano), poet Imani Kadja Chuki, African folklorist Dr. David Anderson and the Ohio Women's Reformatory Gospel Choir. A few of the visual artists will be Yolanda Brown, Jacque Cross, Charles Dillard, Jaimey Dillard, Don Guess, Mang Hang, Joe Howard, Kojo Kamau, Kay Mason, Leon Page, Paula Ramey, Alice Slade, Lynn Stiel and Acquetta Williams.

There will be glass sculptures, paintings in all media, photography, jewelry, and, and, and...

Jean G. Terry-Grant is the dynamic founder of this concept that dates back to 1971 when she was a member of the Committee for Racial Justice at the Cols. YWCA. Eleven years later in 1983, her husband, Joseph, suggested to her that she revive the project through her church, St. Paul AME Church. Rev. Thomas E. Liggins, pastor of the church, agreed and The Arts Committee of St. Paul was born.

Members of The Arts Committee Inc. are Dr. Anna Bishop, Dr. Charles Bridges, Charlie Briggs, Mimi Chenfeld, Irma Cooper, Jacque Cross, Dr. Guy Angilis, Charles Dillard, Johnny Duckens, Matthew Eldridge, William Flowers, E.J. UNCF to roast Carl Osborne

October not only brings with it another new season with bright colors and cool mornings, but October also brings the annual dinner of the United Negro College Fund. As in past years this important event will receive the support of Columbus' citizenry.

Lewis R. Smoot Sr., president and coo of the Sherman R. Smoot Company, Inc. has agreed to act as this year's Honorary Annual Dinner Chairman. In this capacity, he has invited several hundred of his personal friends to join him and UNCF in honoring Carl Osborne and his family.

Osborne, owner of five McDonalds Restaurants in the Columbus area, has given unsparingly in support of the UNCF effort. He has also successfully encouraged the McDonalds Corp. to support UNCF schools across the country. This year's dinner will be a departure from recent years, according to Smoot.

"We thought it would be exciting and fun to change the format to a roast and we all will agree that Carl Osborne is overdue," Smoot said.

Participating will be executives of the McDonalds Corp. from across the country and many of Columbus' outstanding citizens, coming together to provide some of the secret details about Osborne that we're all anxious to hear.

This year's annual dinner is slated for Wednesday, October 26, at 6:30 p.m. at the Ohio Regency Ballroom, Ohio Center, 350 N. High St.

"Carl and his family's contribution to this community is immeasurable. This event is designed to honor and give Carl a bit of a hard time, as well as provide good entertainment," said Mr. UNCF, James L. Allen.

'There's always hope for our youth,' Saunders says

This is the fourth in a series of articles about United Way of Franklin County agencies. The "Give Love-The United Way" campaign to raise $28,185,000 will conclude Nov. 22.

For more than 40 years, Jaymes Saunders has dedicated her life to helping others. And through those years, there have been thousands of Columbus children and families who have been touched by her. "It's mind boggling," Saunders said, who smiles broadly as she recalls all the children who have passed through her life. "My parents taught me to help others in need. We were blessed, so now I feel the responsibility to share what I was given."

Saunders, who received her bachelor's degree in 1945 and later earned a masters degree in social work, is now executive director of the J. Ashburn Jr. Youth Center, a United Way Agency.

"Most important is to tell each person who walks through the center's doors that someone cares about them," she said, emphasizing the word care. "People, especially children, need to feel love and that there is a sense of caring and interest in them."

She said one of the saddest things she sees are people who give up trying to better themselves.

"We see a lot of young men who have difficulty finding a job—even after they've tried very hard," she said. "After awhile, they just give up." The J. Ashburn Jr. Youth Center can help.

"The recreation center is open and these young men can come in and play basketball or do some other activity," she said. "It's here that we can begin to talk with and encourage the rejected person to keep trying one more time. It may take a longer time than expected, sometimes two years, but if you keep at it there will be success."

During her time at the center, she has seen many success stories, but one of the most memorable is of a young man who came to the center after hanging out on the streets.

"This young man could've turned either way," Saunders said. "But when he came to the center

JAYMES SAUNDERS
...serves community

he found a different life. We got him working around the center he helped with our other youth. Today, that young man is in the court system—not as a criminal, but as a lawyer."

There are many stories—those of young people looking for a second home, or a family whose are faced with some difficult choices.

"There are more drugs, alcohol is more available, TV exposes them to a new world and, often, children are part of a single parent family," she said. Yet, with all the challenges, she feels there is great hope for the future.

"There's always great hope for our youth," Saunders said. "They have the enthusiasm, energy and the desire to be helpful. We just need to give them a chance. That's all they need."

Through the years, she has given thousands of kids that chance.

The J. Ashburn Jr. Youth Center is one of United Way's 69 member agencies and receives more than $210,000. Contributions to United Way help assure continued funding of the center which offers counseling, tutoring, and employment and recreational opportunities.

United Way

luck had turned sour. Each have found help and understanding with Jaymes Saunders.

"The most important thing is that we help children learn a sense of responsibility," she said. "If we achieve this, then people can become responsible adults."

Accepting responsibility, as Saunders did, is often a difficult challenge because the youth today

THE CALL AND POST, Thursday, October 13, 1988 - Page 58

1968 glory days recalled; current Buckeyes wavering

By ALBERT C. JONES
Call and Post Staff Reporter

John Brockington, a member of the 1968 Ohio State University football team that claimed the last National Championship by a Big Ten school, was benched by Woody Hayes, the immortal and legendary coach of the Buckeyes, JOHN BROCKINGTON was benched by coach Wood Hayes for the Jan. 1, 1969 Rose Bowl. Ohio State defeated Southern Cal, 27-16, to capture the National Championship. Brockington finished his OSU career with 1,663 yards on 378 carries and 24 touchdowns. He is No. 19 on the career leaders' list.

for the Rose Bowl because he had a bad game against Michigan.

It must have been ironic to Brockington, now a sales rep. for Equitable Insurance in San Diego, Calif., because the Buckeyes crushed Michigan, 50-14, to seal a 9-0 regular season and a trip to the Rose Bowl to face O.J. Simpson, that year's Heisman Trophy winner, and the USC Trojans. Those immortal jocks of sweet suspiration-Brockington, Rex Kern, Jan White, Leo Hayden, Rufus Mayes, Jack Tatum, et al—beat Southern Cal, 27-16, inscribing for an eternity the text of football greatness at OSU.

"Woody benched me for the Rose Bowl," said Brockington, who played six seasons with the Green Bay Packers and a final season with the Kansas City Chiefs. "I just couldn't get it going against Michigan. I couldn't get any yards rushing," the former OSU halfback said. Brockington in that 1968 season was a sophomore. He was moved from wingback, to fullback and finally to tailback.

"Woody didn't say much," Brockington recalled in a telephone interview. "Leo Hayden (who is now a new car sales manager for Krieger Ford in Columbus) started in the Rose Bowl. He had a great game. I really didn't play a whole lot of football for state until my senior year." If the aspiration is sweet, then the memories of winning the National Championship is even sweeter, Brockington said. It was a team that produced, with the end of eligibility, 19 NFL draft choices, of whom six were the first round selections.

"We were a bunch of babies," Brockington said. "Most of the team was sophomores, but we had a great deal of talent and we didn't play like sophomores. We had incredible athletic ability. That was a great class of football players — a great team."

Brockington has two daughters, Kelly 21, and Ashley, 16. From afar he still follows the Buckeyes, but Brockington will be in Columbus Saturday for the 1968 team's 20th reunion.

This year's version of the Buckeyes, coming off a 41-7 loss to Indiana, will face Purdue (2-3 and 1-1) in Ohio Stadium at 1:30 p.m. The Boilermakers lost 20-0 to Illinois last week. OSU, 203 and 0-2 in the Big Ten, beat Purdue last year 20-17 in West Lafayette, Ind.

"They've given up 72 points in two games," Brockington said. "Goodness, what's going on? That's sports, but no one expects Ohio State to be playing like this, giving up this many points in two weeks. "It happens. This coach (John Cooper) is a good coach. Maybe he's looking for a different type of athlete from the ones they have on the team now. The PAC-10 plays with speed players. Maybe that's what this coach is looking for."

Again, for the second week, coach Cooper had to explain what is becoming the inexplicable: why is his team playing so poorly?

For the record, he said the Hoosiers are the best team the Buckeyes have faced this year, and for that reason he voted Indiana as the 14th best team in the nation in the weekly coaches' poll.

"We're at a real crossroads defensively," Cooper told the Monday press luncheon.

Purdue will bring with them Marc Foster, a senior free safety, who is leading the nation in interceptions with six.

THE MIKE AND ROBIN AFFAIR

Big Joe sports potpourri

The week was handed down that Big Joe ought to do something on Robin Givens and Mike Tyson.

Why me? "Because Big Joe, Almighty, you're the famed sports columnist of the Call and Post," was the response to a question I thought I heard.

Would you consider an immediate resignation? Big Joe is seldom shy, but who in his right mind would want to butt in on this one; a divorce played out on network television, the tabloids, the broad sheets and the ploy of morning radio comics across the nation.

"It's not like you're in on some kind of secret, Big Joe," the logic was.

I was still doubtful. The pros and cons could be heavy on a single man. Consider, if I take Mike Tyson's side, then my life could suddenly become lonely. I can bear it now. "Big Joe, you're arrogant. Get away from me. You put all the blame on Robin. She's innocent, and that boxer guy is a big, awful brute. He belted her. Get out, Big bonus. Then there is the chance of damaging the male egos of colleagues, readers and anyone prone to doing drivebys. I mean this could be serious. Big Joe being Joe, and never come back." "Aah, baby, please," I'd be forced to say. "Please, it's cold outside, and it's lonely at home." Certainly taking Mike Tyson's side isn't going to earn me any huddled in and out of the Call and Post office at 109 Hamilton Park. (I can't believe I just gave out the address) and rushed about town in several different cars. I mean this thing is bound to become emotional. I can hear a certain colleague saying:

"Big Joe, you're hen pecked—guy. You know she used her Sarah Lawrence College experience to peel the head of a rich but otherwise street brother from the Bronx. Come on, man. Big Joe, what's happened to your heart, cousin?"

"Big Joe, they say her mother is a gold digger. It was a setup from day one: Confuse Mike until he thinks he's nuts and then let's take at least 50 percent of the money and run, fly, cruise or sail off into the sunset."

Well, Big Joe, are you going to opt for a monk's lifestyle, or will you risk one of those Los Angeles-style drivebys? The decision is yours to make, Big Joe.

Now, now — Big Joe's not ready for a harmonic convergence. Then again, you can call off the police protection and decoy cars. And too, Givens and Tyson may call up one another and say: "I love you, Mike." "I love you too, Robin."

You make the calls. BUTCH REYNOLDS The other edict was: "Do something on the Olympics, you know, a historical perspective so we'll have it on record, Big Joe."

The Olympics, but they were in Seoul, South Korea, and I'm here in Columbus, Ohio, I thought. I'll certainly be glad when Big Joe gets put on a Dick Fenlon budget.

"You can dream if you want to, Big Joe, but I wouldn't hold your breath if I were you," I thought I heard someone say.

Well now, Harry Butch Reynolds set the world ablaze this summer by, as the radio promos played over and over said, shattering the world record in the 400 meters with 43.29. Reynolds, for the record, finished second to UCLA's Steve Lewis.

EDWIN MOSES Dayton's Edwin Moses preeminence in the 400-meter hurdles may have come to an end after winning golds in the event in Montreal in 1976 and Los Angeles in 1984. Moscow was boycotted in 1980. Moses posted a third in Seoul, adding a bronze medal to his many accolades that include the world's best at 47.02 and the longest winning streak.

The Tigers of East High School will take its high-powered offense on the road this Friday when the team travels to Independence to take on the 76ers in a 7:30 p.m. City League Blue Division game.

The Tigers defeated Marion-Franklin 58-8 in a Blue Division game last Friday, raising its record to (5-1 and 2-0). The young Red Devils team, under second year coach Bruce Carter, has fallen on hard times, dropping to (0-6 and 0-2).

"Independence was an upset winner over Whetstone last Friday, beating the Braves 15-8 in Blue Division play."

"We're expecting a real tough game," said East coach Doug Smith. "They've got a good runningback in Timba Johnson and a double threat in wingback Roger Harper. Basically what we're going to do is keep doing what we've done in the past, mix the run with the pass."

Smith said he doesn't expect a letdown from his Tigers after witnessing senior quarterback Brian Gordon connect on 16 of 18 passes for 235 yards and three touchdowns passes to wide receiver Jeff Harrison, who caught 8 passes for 159 yards.

DARRELL ELLIOTT
...successful switch

"We've got a mission here," Smith said, recalling last season when the Tigers were forced to forfeit three games. "Last year we didn't get a chance to prove we were the best team in the Blue Division."

Smith said this year's Tigers, one of the best in a decade, have come together for a total team effort. He was full of compliments Monday for Darrell Elliott, who switched from the upback position to offensive tackle and is a mainstay in an offensive line that gives Gordon adequate time to launch his acrias. And too, runningback Dion Holmes is having a stellar season, rushing thus far for 645 yards on 50 carries and averaging 12.4 yards. The per carry average is the best in Central Ohio, Smith said.

Joel Fliegel scored twice for the Tigers on runs of 3 and 7 yards. Holmes had a 35-yard scamper for a TD.

The 76ers were led by Timba Johnson in its win over Whetstone. Johnson broke through the Braves' line for 87 yards and a 1-yard tallie.

Independence coach Steve Corbin could not be reached for comment Monday night. However, Smith said this game between the Blue Division's two undefeated could be the deciding factor in the city and state considerations.

Merry Makers Club hosts tenth annual Ohio State roundballer's banquet

The Merry Makers Club, Inc. will have their tenth annual banquet in honor of the 1988-89 Ohio State University Basketball teams Wednesday, Nov. 16, at the Ohio Union, 1739 N. High St., Columbus, Ohio.

Willie Stargell, 1988 inductee into the National Baseball Hall of Fame, will be this year's guest speaker. This year's banquet will also be dedicated to the memory of John Galbreath and Josephine Fairer, two of Columbus' outstanding citizens and unsparing supporters of the Merry Makers Club for many years.

Past speakers include John Galbreath, Woody Hayes, Paul Warfield, Rex Kern, Governor Dick Celeste, Oscar Robinson and Julius Erving.

The funds derived from the banquet are contributed to the Ohio State University Development Fund, to provide scholarships to academically superior Black students.

In the past nine years, due to the generosity of the Columbus community, a total of $79,065.00 has been given to the University, while an average of 760 persons have been in attendance.

Join Willie Stargell, the OSU Basketball Team(s) and coaching staff in this expression of support for those students devoted to positive academic excellence.

Due to the overwhelming success of the past banquets, reserve your table as soon as possible. Gold area tables of ten are $750. Silver area tables of ten are $500. and Bronze area tables of ten are $250.

To order ticket or for further information, call Stephen Cheek at (614) 225-6954 or contact the Merry Makers Club, Inc., 618 E. Spring St., Columbus, Ohio 43215.

Golf classic earns money for colleges

The recent Bill Sykes United Negro College Fund 1988 Golf Classic continued to be a money-maker for the UNCF Central Ohio Campaign. The first Bill Sykes UNCF Classic was held in 1985 and has raised in excess of $200,000 in the four years.

The Classic was held at the Foxfire Golf Club on R. 104. The committee that made this affair happen are: Tournament Management/Foxfire Coordination, Ron Remy, chair; Budget and Finance, David Stadge, chair; Mailing, Printing, Communications, Joe Carmichael, chair; Gifts, Trophies, Souvenirs, Frank Ilcin, chair; Sponsors, Participants, Tom Fries, chair; Proposal Karen Nowak, chair; James L. Allen, UNCF Special Consultant.

The $200,000 or more raised in the last several years from the golf classic will greatly help the 42-member institutions and their 45,000 students enrolled. Private colleges nationally are in a precarious financial position. Our nation's historically Black private colleges are even more vulnerable and, consequently, more dependent upon funds from the private sector. The generous effort of the golf classic committee should be congratulated for a job well done. Sykes said.

The UNCF is seeking a $1 million goal in Central Ohio. The National goal is $43.5 million.

Paid 'zebras' sought for rec. office

The Columbus Recreation and Parks Department Adult Sports Office is looking for qualified basketball and volleyball officials for the new season.

The department conducts 36 adult volleyball leagues during the winter season, November through February. The program includes approximately 340 teams. League play is by United States Volleyball Association rules and the compensation is $11.50 per match with usually four or five matches per evening. Interested officials are required to attend a meeting scheduled before the season begins.

Basketball officials who are not registered with the Ohio High School Athletic Association for the 1988-89 season or are registered but did not work for the Columbus Recreation department last winter are required to attend two department sponsored rules and mechanics meetings. The per game rate for the 1988-89 basketball season is $12.50 and officials are normally assigned two games per session. For more information on officiating call the Adult Sports Office, 445-3366.

PREPARES FOR MICHIGAN

Beechcroft steamrolls Eastmoor

By ALBERT C. JONES
Call and Post Staff Writer

Excuse me, but what does that headline say? Beechcroft is preparing for a game against Michigan last week. That's in need of a little explanation, don't you think?

For sure. After the Cougars of Beechcroft scored on their first five possessions, crowned Kelli Ross homecoming queen at halftime, and saw Sidney Hairston, a 5-7, 230-pound senior linebacker return an interception 20 yards for a touchdown in route to a 33-0 City League Red Division victory over Eastmoor last Friday, coach Tom Dunlap saw fit to call a team meeting.

What gives? And what about Michigan? The Cougars had just raised its record to (5-1 and 3-0), while the Warriors of coach Marv Bohanan fell to (1-5 and 1-1).

"I called the meeting to get our kids to start thinking about Mifflin," Dunlap said. "Mifflin is our number one rival. That's our Michigan."

There's Michigan. "We lost to Mifflin last year by a touchdown," Dunlap recalled. "They kept us from being city champs. We could have kept them from going to the state playoff and been city champions."

SIDNEY HAIRSTON
...a linebacker scores

The game is Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Mifflin, which was a 3-0 overtime winner over West in a Red Division game last Friday. The Pioneers are (4-2 and 2-1). West fell to (2-4 and 1-1).

"It's going to be a hard hitting, tough-nosed football game," said Mifflin coach Charles Eichinger. "I know I say this each week, but we prepare our kids the same way each week."

We expect each team we play their best game against us. We've matured as a team. Our sophomore quarterback Jamal Clark has learned how to stay in the pocket and zip the ball.

"Our goal is to be in the state playoffs and finish with a 9-1 record," Dunlap said. "My team knows if we lose one more game our goal is over. Each week's a new challenge."

The Cougars racked up 231 yards in total offense, 200 on the ground on 49 carries and 6 or 7 passing for 31 yards. Senior tailback Kevin Chambers led all rushers with 71 yards on 18 carries, scoring a touchdown on a 2-yard dive.

Rodney Farrow, a senior running back, followed with a second quarter 1-yard plunge. Senior running back Mike Kendrick put another TD on the board with a 5-yard second quarter run. Junior QB Juan Collins connected with senior end Kayzan Phillips for a 25-yard TD.

Score it Beechcroft 28-0 at the half. Hairston ended all scoring after picking off a deflected pass in the third period and romped 20 yards for the score.

After the loss, Eastmoor's Bohanan, which plays Friday at Cooper Stadium against South in a Red Division game at 7:30 p.m., said it's back to the basics for his team.

"We have to come in ready to play football this Friday," Bohanan said. "This is going to be a test to see if we're masquerading or just wearing football uniforms or if our kids really want to play football."

Stacie McCall to sign with U of M

Stacie McCall, a 5-4, 119-pound senior point guard at Bishop Hartley said she will sign a national letter of intent Nov. 9 to play basketball at the University of Michigan. McCall, who averaged 14 points, 7 rebounds and 5 steals as a junior, recently visited the Ann Arbor campus of the Big Ten school.

McCall is carrying a 3.8 grade point average. She will receive a full athletic scholarship at Michigan.

"Their main concern at Michigan is your education and career goals," McCall said. "This really impressed me and my parents. There was some negative reaction about me signing or announcing early that I would sign with Michigan, but I'm handling things quite well. McCall plans to major in communications and minor in child psychology. She is the daughter of Bill and Pat (Hollingsworth) McCall.

Michael Jordan seats available

Tickets for the exhibition season game between the Chicago Bulls, featuring last season's Most Valuable Player, Michael Jordan and the New Jersey Nets are still available for the Wednesday, Oct. 19 showdown in OSU's St. John Arena.

The game will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will be without former OSU All-American Dennis Hopson, who sprained an ankle last week playing pickup basketball.

$20.50 tickets have been sold out for the National Basketball Association game. There are $15.50 and $12.50 seats available through the ticket office at St. John Arena (292-2624) or by calling 1-800-Go Bucks.

In addition to Jordan, who recently signed a long-term contract with the Bulls, the Chicago roster includes former Ohio State Brad Seiler and Granville Waiters, as well as Dayton's

Financial audit awaits Hebrew

The ousted chairman of the deacon board at Hebrew Baptist Church and his attorney have hired a court-sanctioned certified public accountant to review the church's financial records. Hebrew, 1338 Gault St., and its pastor, Rev. Melvin I. O'Neill, have been the source of probes into its financial condition since last spring.

Sylvester Drafton, a former deacon at the church, and Michael Gunner, his attorney, were expected to appear in Franklin County Common Pleas Court

Thursday, Oct. 13 and set the parameters for auditor Michael Dixon to begin his review of financial records of the church and O'Neill, who is the source of an ongoing Columbus police investigation for the alleged misuse of the church's funds.

Steven Lee Smith, a Columbus attorney representing the Adirondack Chair Co. of New York, said Tuesday his client is eager to find out the church's financial position, hoping to collect on delinquent accounts for equipment. Smith didn't specify a dollar amount.

Drafton and other Hebrew members are concerned about insolvency that could make them personally liable for debts between $175,000 and $200,000. Drafton said he would be personally responsible for $10,000 of the debt because of loan notes he and others signed.

Meanwhile, Columbus police detective John Devenish said Tuesday he is continuing with his investigation into O'Neill's alleged misuse of funds and was hoping to request a grand jury hearing within the next several weeks, he said.

Dukakis team faces internal problems

political bloodletting that normally accompanied their campaigns; they had been able to identify a candidate and set a national tone in the party platform which vague, if not downright obscure, on many tough issues - abortion, affirmative action, homosexual rights - which had hung like an albatross around the party in previous elections; and the party's vice-presidential candidate, Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, was seen as a strong choice to help make deep inroads in the South.

That bright promise of three months ago, however seems misplaced in the political councils of Democrats today, and some are privately conceding that a Dukakis defeat is likely. What happened between July and October to so disrupt the Democrats' hopes?

There has historically been blame placed on Black Democrats for the problems facing the party's nominees. In close losing races, the blame is often that Black voters did not turn out in sufficient numbers to ensure victory (although there is seldom overt acknowledgement, when the Democratic candidates win, of the decisive role of Black voters).

Even now, there has been concern among many Dukakis supporters that the problems Dukakis has had in satisfying the Rev. Jesse Jackson have contributed to his woes.

But the problems with Jackson appear to be a symptom, rather than a cause, of the Dukakis problems. In discussions with campaign supporters, Black and white, a picture emerges of a Dukakis campaign which has been remarkably insular in nature, drawing only on the talents of a few Boston-based insiders and not incorporating the vision and assistance of local leadership in the states in which they worked.

One campaign insider referred to the staff as "arrogant" and "insensitive," but asserted that the issue was not racial. According to the insider, both white and Black political leaders have found great difficulty in penetrating the Dukakis team.

A recent story in the Columbus Dispatch noted the complaints of many Democratic officials about receiving access to the Dukakis campaign. But a white long-time Dukakis supporter argued that the complaints, while valid, were not restricted to the Democratic party officials.

Even some early supporters, this campaign insider said, have been increasingly frozen out of the campaign, as the campaign has been directed largely from Boston.

On Sept. 27, members of the Black Elected Democrats of Ohio and other Black leadership figures held a meeting with Dukakis in Cleveland to ensure the smooth integration of the Dukakis and Jackson staffs, and to solidify commitments made to the Black community.

While the meetings appear to have helped, there is still a lack of cohesiveness among the staff members of the two campaigns.

A strong comparison can be made between the Reagan-Bush run in 1980 and the Dukakis-Jackson contest this year. In fact, the Dukakis-Jackson race was less negative than the Reagan-Bush confrontation - which was memorable because of Bush's claims that Reagan's fiscal policy represented "voodoo economics."

Once the primary campaign was over, however, the two campaigns merged forces, and Bush supporters became key members of the Reagan team.

Ohio Democratic party chairman James Ruvolo said that the problems of integration of Jackson supporters into the Dukakis campaign staff are exaggerated.

"Ohio's the one state that everybody said was going great," Ruvolo argued. The campaign has opened minority offices in the major cities, and "in every urban community we have a Jackson and Dukakis person working hand-in-hand."

Ruvolo added that key Jackson operative Darnette Palmore was named a Deputy Director of the Ohio Dukakis team, and Jeff Resnick, a member of the national Jackson staff, is doing get-out-the-vote activities for the Ohio Democratic party.

Yet the viewpoint persists that Dukakis has failed, in a meaningful way, to incorporate the talents and strategies of the Jackson forces - and the Democratic party as a whole.

Of course, the race is not yet over.

Ruvolo, while admitting that the campaign has been "in a slide," asserts that the corner has turned, and Ohio is "basically a dead heat" Ohio - and with it, the presidency - he will have no one to blame between the two candidates. "We have time to do (the campaign) right."

But time is running out. And, it appears that if Dukakis does lose Ohio - and with it, the presidency - he will have no one to blame for his defeat but himself.

Manley said police also arrested Fishia Hill, 18, of the Cherry St. address on a misdemeanor warrant.

At 5:05 p.m., police raided 237 Barthman Ave., seized $755 in cash and crack-processing equipment, according to Manley.

The final raid for the day was conducted about an hour later at 704 Berkeley Rd., where police confiscated crack with an estimated street value of $5,650, drug-sale records and $2,734 in cash, Manley said.

Police charged Mario Gibbs, 17, of 1621 Shanley Dr. and Willie Tatum, 17, of 2119 Cleveland Ave. with delinquency counts of possessing crack.

Police narcotics detectives, armed with a search warrant, dated October 6 and 7, for 298 Graham Ave., arrested and charged William Holsey, 27, of that address. He was charged with possession with intent to distribute. Holsey faces a maximum of 20 years in jail.

Also arrested and charged at the Graham Avenue address was Warren Henderson, 26, Capt.

WAYME MOORE PARK DEDICATION TUESDAY - When the Columbus Recreation and Parks Department, and some concerned neighbors of the Mayme Moore Park appealed in the Call and Post edition of Oct. 6, for community support in keeping the park clean, the only person who has come forward so far to pitch in the clean-up effort has been Jack Weiler, head of the maintenance/custodial section of the Martin Luther King Center. The neighborhood is welcome and invited to show its respect for the Mayme Moore Park, a symbol of great lady and of our community. A dedication ceremony will be held Tuesday for the honorable lady Oct. 18 at 2 p.m. at 240 Martin Luther King Jr. Blvd. The MLK Center Head Custodian Weiler, said: "Ever since they planted the grass here, I have been pulling all the weeds out on the curb of the park. I am doing this because I live in the neighborhood. I feel that everyone here should contribute." (PHOTO BY TED OSHODI)

SRP Properties will be holding an informational meeting at New Salem in November to further explain the process. The meeting date and time will be announced in the near future, Taylor said.

Huntington Mortgage Co. has agreed to provide permanent financing to prequalified buyers at McCutcheon Meadows. This will eliminate the need for construction loans and make it easier to purchase a new home.

The development of McCutcheon Meadows will be an opportunity for upwardly mobile minorities to form a new community. SRP Properties has taken the initiative and is committed to building a quality community.

For more information about

McCutcheon Meadows, please contact SRP Properties between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. at 461-4105, or from 4:30 to 11 p.m. at 253-1157.

LEGAL NOTICE
STATE OF OHIO
DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES
COLUMBUS, OHIO

Pursuant to Section 5111.02 and Chapter 119, of the Ohio Revised Code, the Director of the Department of Human Services gives notice of the department's intent to consider the amendment of rules which will expand the current pilot project for enhanced transportation services to a statewide program.

Rule 5101.3-24-01 entitled "County Transportation Plan for Counties Participating in the Enhanced Transportation Program" sets forth the requirements each participating county must meet to have its plan approved by the Ohio Department of Human Services. The rule is being proposed for amendment to expand the program statewide.

Rule 5101.3-24-02 entitled "Criteria for Medicaid (Title XIX) Coverage of Transportation Services" sets forth criteria for Medicaid coverage of transportation services. The rule is being proposed for amendment to change and clarify the criteria.

Rule 5101.3-24-05 entitled "Services that are Medicaid-Reimbursable" sets forth the range of services which counties may cover. The rule is being proposed for amendment to give County Departments of Human Services more flexibility in establishing payment rates for services in the county transportation plan.

Rule 5101.3-24-06 entitled "Requests for Transportation" sets forth guidelines for processing requests for transportation. The rule is being proposed for amendment to clarify how counties will process various requests for transportation services.

Rule 5101.3-24-07 entitled "Nonreimbursable Transportation Services" sets forth the types of transportation services which are nonreimbursable. This rule is being proposed for amendment to identify an additional transportation service that is not covered through the Enhanced Medicaid Transportation program.

A copy of the proposed rules is available, without charge, to any person affected by them at the address listed below.

A public hearing on the proposed rules will be held November 13, 1988, at 10:00 A.M. until all testimony is heard in the Lobby Multi-Purpose Room, State Office Tower, 30 E. Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio.

At this public hearing, the Ohio Department of Human Services will take written and verbal testimony from any person affected by the proposed rules. Written comments on the proposed rules may be submitted by mail, if postmarked no later than November 18, 1988.

Requests for a copy of the proposed rules and/or submission of written comments should be sent to the Office of Legal Services, Ohio Department of Human Services, 30 E. Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio 43260-6423.

SWAT team called to Eastside residence

By WALI BELL
Call and Post Staff Writer

A Columbus woman who was abducted by her ex-boyfriend and held in a house until Columbus Police SWAT team members negotiated her release, refused to file charges against him Monday morning.

Columbus police said they answered a report from the mother of Evora D. Coleman, 880 Caldwell Pl., that she was beaten and abducted by ex-boyfriend Vincent Lyles and taken to his house at 107 Ohio Ave.

When police arrived at the Ohio Avenue address, they heard screams and a woman pleading for help. The officers called for supervision and the SWAT team was eventually called in, police said.

Police SWAT officers surrounded the house and negotiators finally convinced Lyles to release Coleman and surrender to officers about 12:45 p.m., police said.

Police said Lyles had no weapons. Coleman was taken to St. Anthony's Hospital and later released. She had no injuries.

"We were glad it was resolved without the use of force," SWAT Lt. Richard Morgan said.

DeLois Goolbsy, Lyles' aunt who owns the house, said Lyles was a good person and didn't know what triggered the situation.

"He's just an ordinary young man. He has no major problems I know of," Goolbsy said.

Goolbsy said although the couple ended their relationship over a year ago, the two were on a friendly basis with each other.

"I'm sure he talked to her. She has been here before and he has called her before," she explained.

Police said the couple was arguing over child-visitation rights.

'Youth against crime'

The Driving Park Area Commission will sponsor its 7th Annual "Youth Against Crime Rally" Saturday, Oct. 15, 4-7 p.m. at the Driving Park Recreation Center, 1100 Rhoads Avenue.

Featured activities include Mrs. Lois Glover, Principal, Kent Elementary School, talking with youth to stay in school and stay away from drugs. A helicopter demonstration by the Columbus Police Department, special music for talent show participants will also be given.

Free food and drinks will be provided by Driving Park and other Columbus businesses as well as Driving Park citizens. The event is coordinated by James Johnson, Chairman of the Driving Park Public Safety Committee along with Mrs. Angie Howard, Director of the Driving Park Area Recreation Center.

In its 7th year, the Youth Against Crime Rally urges youth in the community and parents to become more aware of crime in their community and what they can do about it.

Where Martin Learned To Dream

"I have a dream," said Dr. Martin Luther King, "that one day my four little children will be judged not by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character." It was a dream whose reality Dr. King had experienced during his education at Morehouse College, one of America's Black colleges.

In an environment of openness, opportunity and high expectations, young Martin Luther King, Jr. learned to stretch his intellectual capabilities to their limits. And bolstered by a tradition that has produced great scholars, professionals and leaders, he developed the character that would shatter the assumptions of a nation. Is it any wonder that, though they enroll only 20% of Black college students, Black colleges produce 40% of Black college graduates?

When you're considering colleges, doesn't it make sense to consider the ones that helped mold visionaries like Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.? America's Black colleges. They can help you find a future that's beyond your wildest dreams.

Are You Smart Enough To Go?
